

John C. Maxwell's "5 Levels of Leadership" Level 4

The Fourth Level of Leadership – The _____ Level

People are following you at this level because of what you have done for _____.

At this level you are focusing on _____ and _____ potential leaders.

Review of what got you here:

1. Level 1 – My _____ does not make me a leader
2. Level 2 – By focusing on building positive _____ I can develop respect and trust.
3. Level 3 – I created successes by developing a Lodge _____ and building effective _____.

It is time again for some self-assessment to determine how capable you are to function as a level 4 leader.

Assess yourself in each area by answering each question with either 1) Never, 2) Sometimes or 3) Always:

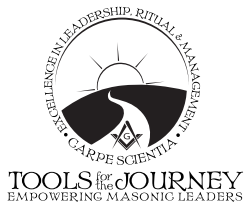

1. Am I developer of people?
2. I find great joy in seeing those around me rise above my own capabilities.
3. Mentoring and investing in other people's lives is important to me.
4. My visions and dreams are too big to accomplish by myself.
5. I am committed to a lifetime of personal growth.
6. My motivation in mentoring is to make others better, not make me look better.

As we look for potential leaders we should ensure they are the following type of people:

1. Those with _____ value – Those who raise up themselves
2. Those with _____ value – Those who raise the morale in the organization
3. Those with _____ value – Those who raise up other leaders
4. Those with _____ value – Those who raise up others
5. Those with _____ value – Those who raise up others who raise up other people

Creating a process to help potential leaders learn is called "equipping." List the five steps mentioned for equipping leaders.
